Little Rock Central High School

Read the following paragraphs. Each time you come to a place where there are two words in BOLD print, circle the one that is correct.

In the 1950s, many school children across the country attended schools that were only for white children or only for black children. In 1954 / 1964 the Supreme / County Court decided that having these segregated schools was unconstitutional. Schools across the country began to close / integrate.

Officials in Little Rock, Arkansas / California , decided to integrate gradually, beginning with the high / elementary school. Five / Nine African American students were chosen to be the first to attend classes at Little Rock Central High. The mayor / Governor of Arkansas did not like the idea of blacks and whites attending the same schools, however, so he called out the National Guard / city gangs to keep the students from attending the school. President Eisenhower / Nixon knew he had to make sure the Constitution was upheld, so he sent members of the 101st Airborne / Marine Division to Little Rock to see that the Little Rock Nine were allowed to go to Central High. Many people in Little Rock agreed with the Governor and didn't want the school to be integrated. They began to riot / move away , but the military personnel worked to maintain order.

Finally classes resumed and the school year progressed. Some of the white students continued to be violent and hateful toward the Little Rock Nine. Some students were suspended or expelled for their behavior. Ernest Green, the only senior / boy among the Little Rock Nine, became the first African American to graduate from Central that spring.

Little Rock Central High School is now on the Arkansas / National Register of Historic Places. It became a National Historic Site in 1958 / 1998. In 1999 each of the Little Rock Nine received the Congressional Gold / Silver Medal.
